

Consent to Participate in Research Young Adult Services Study (YASS)

We are from RTI International (RTI). We have been hired to interview young people as part of a study being conducted by the Urban Institute. The Urban Institute is a non-political nonprofit social policy research organization in Washington DC. The Urban Institute study looks at what it's like for young adults who are leaving foster care and the services they may receive. This study is funded by Youth Villages, Inc. We are asking over 600 youth in foster care to help us with this study. You have been asked to be in the study because you are or were a youth in foster care in New Jersey. We call this study the Young Adult Services Study, or YASS. You may have previously participated in an interview with us for this study.

What will happen to me in this study?

If you decide to participate in this study, we would like to interview you today. We may also ask to interview you again in the future. For the interview today, a person from RTI International will ask you questions about the services you have received and the experiences you may have had in the past 24 months. For example, we may ask about your experiences leaving foster care such as education and work, places you lived, and the relationships you have with family and friends. The interview today will last about 75 minutes. The interview can be done at a time that works best for you. Some portions of the interview may be recorded to make sure the person asking the questions is doing a good job.

Some questions ask about your emotions, alcohol and drug use, and behavior that might be against the law. If you want, you can listen to these questions on headphones and enter your answers on a computer. The interviewer will not see your answers to these questions. If you do not want to use the computer, the interviewer can read you the questions. They will enter your answers into the computer. If you do it this way, the interviewer will know your answers to these questions.

Do I have to participate?

You don't have to be in this study. Being in the study is voluntary. If you don't want to be in the study, just tell the interviewer. You can say yes now but you can stop if you change your mind later.

Who will see my information?

Members of the research team will be able to see your information. Information that could identify you will be removed from the information you share today and any of the data we collect about you in the future. The information may be combined and made available for other researchers to use; these files will not include any information that could identify you and will only be available under password protected secure access. If we receive future funding to extend this project, we may share your information with the researchers working on that extension, but they would keep the information that is identifiable private to the same extent that we do. One exception to not sharing your identity, is that the interviewer may need to tell the appropriate authorities if you report evidence of current abuse or neglect. They may also need to report if you threaten to hurt yourself or someone else.

How will my information be protected?

We will do many things to keep your information private. We will only let the research team see your information. We will store information about you either in a locked drawer or on a secure computer. The computer will be password protected. We will also not use your name in any reports or papers.

We also have a Certificate of Confidentiality from the government to protect your privacy. This Certificate of Confidentiality strictly limits when we can share identifiable information collected through our research. For example, we cannot be forced to give a court information about you. However, you should know that the Certificate does not stop reporting that federal, state or local laws require, for example reporting of child abuse and threats to harm yourself or others.

Can anything bad happen to me?

Some of the questions you are asked may make you feel uneasy. You do not have to answer any questions that you do not want to answer. Additionally, any data you may agree to provide us access to could be compromised in a breach of data and the answers you may provide in the interview could be revealed. We have taken precautions discussed under “How will my information be protected?” to minimize the risk of any data being compromised.

Participating in-person increases your risk of exposure to illnesses such as COVID-19, flu, or other contagious illnesses. You may request that the person interviewing you wears a mask, and you may also request a mask for yourself. You may also request that we conduct the interview outside—on a porch, deck, or steps outside of your home. The interview can also be conducted by telephone if you prefer.

Can anything good happen to me?

You will not benefit directly from this study. But data we get from the study is important. Being in this study will let you tell officials about your experiences during and after foster care. This information may be used to improve the services that youth receive during care. Many youth in foster care appreciate the chance to tell their story and be listened to.

Will I get anything for being part of the study?

For helping me with this study, you will receive $75 for this survey. If you decide to stop being in the study or skip some of the questions today, you still get $75. It’s all up to you.

Who is doing the study? Who can I talk to about it?

This study is being done by the Urban Institute, the University of Chicago, and the Survey Firm, RTI International. Youth Villages, Inc. is paying for this study. The people in charge of the study are Dr. Michael Pergamit (mpergamit@urban.org), Dr. Mark Courtney (markc@uchicago.edu), and Dr. Katrina Brewsaugh (kbrewsaugh@urban.org). Subject’s Statements

(1) Agreement to Participate in Today’s Interview

Do you voluntarily agree to participate in today’s interview? You can choose not to participate at any time.

Yes No

(2) Agreement to Audio Recordings

We use a laptop quality control (QC) system for this study. The system runs on the computer and will record what you and I say to each other during parts of the survey. Neither you nor I will know when the computer records what we say. The recordings are used to monitor my work. We keep the recordings for those purposes only and we keep them private. We will destroy the files after this review.

Do we have your okay to run this system during the interview?

Yes No
